School children will be taken there by bus beginning with the Midway School at 12:30 p. m.

Note: The school will not make change for the envelopes. They are to be sealed at home.

Clinic rates apply only at the clinic. The cost of each immunization will be 80 cents. If there is a person who cannot afford the immunization needed please send a signed note in the sealed envelope with the vaccine request form and the immunization will be given free of charge.

Only one immunization will be given to a child at each clinic.

Grade School Children will receive a Vaccine Request Form to take home each Thursday before the clinic.

Students in Junior and Senior High may pick up Vaccine Request Forms in the Office. The Vaccine Request Forms may also be obtained from the Board of Health Offices in the Courthouse.

No child will receive an immunization without the Request Form Completely filled in. This includes:

1. Name of child
2. Date vaccine is to be given.

Amblyopia Clinic Slated by 9/23/71 Health Dept.

A Lazy Eye (amblyopia) Clinic will be held this Friday for four and five-year-old pre-school children.

Children develop their vision by using their eyes. This occurs up until the age of seven years. If one eye is crossed, or near-sighted, or far-sighted, that eye will not be used and consequently will not develop vision. This must be detected before the age of seven so that the condition may be corrected and the child will use both eyes.

This is important because there is always the possibility of injury to the good eye at some time, leaving the child blind in both eyes.

Vision is so important in our social relationships as well as in learning the "3R's". Please bring your 4 and 5 year-old pre-school child to the County Courthouse on Friday, September 17th between 9:00 A. M. and 12:00 Noon and let us help your child. Free.

Commission reviews landfill district

collection. McDonald stated that they would be monitoring the sale and collection very carefully.

Fay moved that the contract with the Horse Association to take care of the rodeo be accepted, and Pete Coleman seconded.

This gives the Horse Association total control over the running of the rodeo for the 1982 county fair.

McDonald suggested there be a few price changes in the 1982 fair, but Commissioner McGuire was fast to recommend that they be careful since the economic situation might hamper attendance.

Representatives from the LDS Stakes, which have property in the Wasatch County area, came to discuss getting off the tax roles of the county because they were a religious group.

Though the commissioners are all LDS, they stuck to their guns with the representatives about the recreation property and not spiritual usage.

"If we say that you can be exempt, then all the other counties will be questioning it. If we say no, then we'll all end up in court," proposed Harold Call.

Wilfred Nielson sought a building permit from the county commission, stating that he had tried for years to get one, and they were denied it because of the zoning code.

Planner Mathis asked about a variance, and Nielson replied that they had been able to get one.

The county commissioners explained that the Board of Adjustments might be able to grant a variance for the piece of property and recommended that Mathis work with the Nielson's in getting to the boards next meeting.

Bids were opened for the surplus property in Charleston and the bid by Gayhlen Wright was taken for $999. According to commissioners, this makes Wright's piece of property square.

STUDENTS WITH CLASS...

As Scott Bonner gets his shot, Alan Hilton, Shane Carlson, and Jolene Tadd look on with fear and are apprehensive about being Mrs. Durtisch's next victims.

—WASONG 1983-4

“What? School already”? was racing through many of the students minds as the Wasatch Wave notified us of registration for High School.

Any student with the bright idea of going at 8:00, in order to get done early, was sure to be crestfallen once they got there. Wasatch High was filled with students waiting to pay fees, get class schedules, and choose lockers. Students had to wait in seemingly endless lines to provide proof of immunization, a new state law. Some were amazed to find that their records had been lost. This left many students and their parents heading toward the County Courthouse to the “Shot Dept.” to find the cause of the problem or to be immunized.

After fees were paid, lockers chosen, shots approved, and class schedules finalized, the weary students and administration settled down to wait for the first day at Wasatch High with mixed emotions while breathing a HUGE sigh of relief because registration was OVER!

Well Child

Conference

The Wasatch City-County Health Department is pleased to announce a new service: Well Child Conferences.

The purpose of a Well Child Conference is to prevent health problems through periodic physical and developmental assessments, health education, and guidance.

Examinations are provided by a physician for children from birth to 5 years of age. Clinics are held on Fridays and the child must have an appointment.

Fees are charged according to family income with the service focused primarily toward those children who are not under the care of a private physician.

The value of Well Child Clinics is to detect possible problems early when correction is usually easier and less costly. Children who are known to be ill should be seen by their family doctor.

For more information or an appointment call the Wasatch City-County Health Department, at 654-2700.
